CRITICAL NOTES

[ These Critical Notes cover observations and explanations on the Constituted Text. Lexegetical notes figure but occasionally as the constituted Text of the Rāmāyana is quite smooth and easy, and the object of such notes is to help the reader. They are generally put at places where he may regard the Text rather out of the way in adopting a particular reading. Additions to and corrections in the Text and Critical Apparatus are put in square brackets. SR and NR represent the two major recensions generally but sometimes include allied versions ]

1

1-14—The question of the transpositions of some of these stanzas in SR has been fully discussed in the Introduction (p. 11). There are two explanations possible for this transposition: one is that both Bāla and Ayodhyā at one time formed one Kānda as is evidenced by some MSS like D<sub>1</sub> that we have actually used, and the other is that a folio of a small MS might have been inadvertently misplaced in very early times. That is why some stanzas were transposed, viz., sts 1-4 or 5 and sts 11-14 in Dg<sub>1</sub> T<sub>1</sub> s G and M<sub>1</sub>-3.

9<sup>cd</sup>) Note that there is an attempt in D<sub>6</sub> and some MSS of Ñ V B group to make Rāma an amsāvātāra of Viṣṇu.

10, 10* lines 1-2. It is here that the poem foretells the purpose of the Rāmāvatāra. Note also that these two lines have no support from NR.

29, 20*. Note how the different lines of this passage are distributed in different MSS. The contents relate to the qualities of Rāma, which are all covered by our text. Compare in this context the contents of 14*, 15* and 19<sup>d</sup>.

34, 27*. Note the complex character of this passage which must have been first introduced in SR and then penetrated into NW. The three lines of 27* which are found in some MSS of NR merely expand the idea on account of its contact with SR.

35, 29<sup>b</sup> and 29(A)*. These two passages are peculiar to NW version and have no support of SR.

36, 31*. Note that this passage also is found exclusively in NW version without any support from SR.

4 पूर्व पन्थानमनुगच्छता, i.e., पूर्वया पन्थानमनुगच्छता. The use of the Instrumental case is peculiar here, and might be due to the influence of the same expression in st 3 above. The variant पूर्व which is not well-supported, is an attempt to improve the phrase grammatically.

12, 35* अन्या मध्यस्थविन्ता तु विमर्दाभ्युत्थिता, is a pure S insertion. What Daśaratha wants to say is that his own view on the coronation of Rāma may be due to his own partiality for his son, while members of the assembly may think dispassionately in the matter, and, after deliberations, may even suggest a still better course. Note Cg and Ct on the passage. विमर्देन पूर्वापरपक्षसवर्षेण हेतुना मध्यस्थिताया अधिकांशप्रादुर्भावा.

It appears to me that the argument in the phrase is so loaded that it surely is of late origin influenced by Māgha's Śiśupālavadha, canto 2, and as such abnormal in the Ādikāvya.

1, (App 1, No 5). This additional passage is peculiar and found in D<sub>1</sub> and D<sub>6</sub> only, and is an expansion of ideas already detailed. The passage has no support from the rest of the MSS. Of these two MSS, D<sub>6</sub> has only 20 lines common with D<sub>1</sub>.

11-13, 71<sup>b</sup>, 72* and 73*. Note that these passages are found only in D<sub>1</sub>-4 and have no support of the rest of the MSS.

27 परोक्षया वर्तमानो वृत्त्या प्रत्यक्षया तथा—Note Ct. परोक्षया चारमुत्त परोक्षानुभवसिद्धया वृत्त्या स्वपरराष्ट्रवृत्तान्तविचारेण । प्रत्यक्षया सदा ममाया स्थित्वा प्रजान्यायादिविचारेण, Cg. अप्रत्यक्षया वृत्त्या तक्ष-प्रभृतिवर्मान्तिकानां परोक्षो भूत्वा अधिक्रान्मुखेन यत्कार्याणि सन्निधत्ते, सा परोक्षवृत्ति । अयववानेन अमात्यादीन् यथा वृत्त्यानुगृह्णाति, सा प्रत्यक्षवृत्ति ।

19-20 The reason for immediate coronation of Rāma as indicated here is that stars do not seem to be favourable to Dasaratha, and even suggest calamities like death or change of mind. The good and auspicious idea in the mind of Dasaratha, therefore, requires to be put into action immediately.

25-27 These stanzas indicate that Dasaratha desired Rāma's coronation even in the absence of Bharata, even though, as he knew, Bharata was well disposed to Rāma.

3, 94*—This passage is found in all our MSS except D1-4 (N1 T1 missing), and being a repetition, is excluded from the Constituted Text.

15, 108* ज्ञया or तया are compositions or recitation of songs.

18 दीपवृक्षान्, lamps hanging on trees.

22 दृष्टोक्तपरावर—Cg दृष्टे ये लोके परावरे उत्कृष्टापकृष्टवस्तुनी येन, Ct यथावगन्तस्तज्जनप्रागत्याप्राशस्त्य, one who knows the ins and outs of people.

4 अवपरा,—Ct स्वेष्टार्थपरा Cg construes the phrase differently as an adjective, not of Mantharā, but of Kausalyā अवपरा मती जयपरा सत्यि। यदा। उत्तमेत्तगता-मिदृश्यं धनं प्रयच्छति किम्। नामग्रन्थयाम्नात्वाद्राममानैर्युक्ति। It appears that Mantharā regarded Kausalyā, compared with her mistress Kaikeyī, to be miserly or greedy and not bent on spending. She would not mention the name Kausalyā as she hated her, being Kaikeyī's co-wife.

6 कुन्ता is the name of a class of maid-servants, and does not necessarily relate to the personal deformity so much of Mantharā, though she had a lump of flesh on her chest. Compare 2 9 28 and 30 and the description of her person there.

19 उग्रत्वं राजसमाणाम् Ct नापलो हि म। राज्यराजे त्वात्स्वपुत्रं च नाशयिष्यतीति भावः

23 शत्रु पतिप्रवादेन, an enemy in reality, and husband in name Cg पतिप्रवादेन पतिव्यपदेशेन

5 रामस्य परमा स्त्रिय Much has been made in some quarters of the plural स्त्रिय, which is interpreted by them that Rāma had more than one wife. The correct interpretation of the passage is that it refers to ladies in general, and not necessarily wives, that were dear to Rāma such as Kausalyā, Sumitrā and even Kaikeyī.

26 दर्पास्त्रिगङ्गा पूर्वं राममाता। It appears that Kaikeyī in her youth insulted Kausalyā who, as soon as Rāma becomes king, would take revenge on Kaikeyī. Compare in this context 2 17 22-25, and particularly न दृष्टपूर्वं ऋयाणं स्युः वा पतिपौरुषे and स्वयि मनिहिनेप्येवमहमाम निराकृता.

4 रामार्थमुपहिंसती Cg रामार्थं रामाभिषेकरूपं प्रयोजनम् Compare st 8 below.

9 देवराजस्य माद्यकृत् The word माद्य means माहाय्य. The word is grammatically incorrect, but may be explained as सहभाव, association.

10 दक्षिणा दण्डकान्त्रति The acquaintance that Kaikeyī had of the southern region of the Dandaka forest on this occasion seems to have suggested to her that Rāma should be exiled there. The period of exile, viz., 14 years, instead of 12 years as in the MBh may be a matter of accident. At any rate, I have no explanation to offer why Kaikeyī should mention this figure. Perhaps she thought that after all Rāma might not return to Ayodhyā or survive this period.

29 नाट समवबुध्यैयम् Ct notes here an additional passage not recorded by any of our MSS, and it runs as follows.

न हि तदनुये पापं प्रापदोषेण मोहिता।
केनयेषु हि मा वान्ये ब्राह्मणं रुक्मरूपिणम्।
अमुचितवती बाला नेन शप्ता महात्मना।
यसादमयने निप्र दत्त रूपमदपिना।
तसादमया त्वमपि लोके प्राप्स्यसि कुल्लिताम्।
अति प्रापममाच्छिन्ना मन्त्रराजशमागता।

All this is clearly an after-thought which Nāgasa perhaps found in later recensions of the Rāma story.

10

16 The first half of this stanza has been taken from NR. The contents are supported by 197* and 204*.

21 The reading कमेण is supported by SR and means पादेन.

27-28 These two stanzas state the objective of Kaikeyī in clear terms, and st 29 its immediate fulfilment.

11

1 ययातिमिव पुण्यानेऽवरोराक्षस्तनुवान The reference seems to be to the latter life of Yayāti as recorded in the MBh 1 81-88 and more particularly to 1 81 3

सगन मुखास त निवन मुनिन मया ।
कालस्य नातिमत्ता पुन शोकस्य पारित ।

12

4 This refers to the well-known story, recorded in Hindu and Buddhist works, of Sibi Aśvamarī, who, after promising protection to a pigeon, had to offer his flesh to a hawk. The next stanza refers to a similar story of Alarka who offered his eyes to a learned Brahmin. The reason of quoting these stories is to remind Dasaratha that he must also honour his word.

26 दश मम च वर्षाणि तव ज्ञातव्यं ययन The passage states that Rāma was just 17 years of age when he was to be crowned or exiled

18

11 454<sup>a</sup> lines 3 and 4 This is a citation occurring in the MBh and even in some Smrtis. The expression अहं नय does not suit the context here, though अहं नय is doc.

23 अहं नय इति Rāma threatens to go on a sort of hunger-strike in order to Rāma lives for forest. The practice of pratyahara or hunger-strike to achieve one's object is common from very early times. We have in this very book another instance of such a hunger-strike in 1 103 13-15 when Bharata admonishes Rāma a similar threat to persuade him to return to Ayodhyā to rule. Rāma points out to Bharata that only the Brahmins class is permitted to resort to this practice and not the warrior-class. न तु यूयमधिकारा इति अहं नय in 2 103 17.

20 त्वं न विना विद्वान्मया विद्वान् Rāma says here that he cannot disobey his father's command even though it might be improper. In support, he quotes the cases of a sage Kāṇḍu, Sagar's son and also of Jāmadagnya Rāma.

19

3, 481<sup>a</sup>, lines 3 and 4 The entire * passage is inserted as an explanation of st 3 which states that Rāma desires to dispense with the paraphernalia of coronation, as otherwise Kaikeyī may not take his word seriously. This * passage is found only in SR, and, according to Udipi, this text should be changed like this. The lines 1-4 of 481<sup>a</sup> should be followed by st 3. The MSS of SR that have come down to us do not support Udipi's view. विप्राः न तु वेदादप्यप्यहं

22

Pages 113 and 114 give a conspectus of sequence of the stanzas as found in NR. This indicates that the text-tradition in NR differs widely from that in SR which maintains the order uniformly. This is a clear proof that the versions of NR have not preserved the genuine order of the text-tradition here. Note also that Dr here supports SR.

11 पुष्करव 10 a chariot drawn by eight horses and bedecked with gold and gems. This type of chariot is used in processions as an embellishment. Cg पुष्करव उत्सवाय कञ्चित्तो रथ Ct reads पुष्करव and explains the term लीलामनप्रयोजनो रथ, न तु युद्धार्थे इत्यर्थः । तादृशो निजिगमिषो राजोऽयं गच्छति । तस्मिन् सयामिन्द्रायामोदते, नो चैतन्यो गच्छति.

24

5 अग्रन्ते गमिष्यामि मृदन्ती कुशकण्टकान् Sītā offers to go in front of Rāma, crushing the prickly ends of Kuśa grass (with her tender feet) so that her husband's feet may not be hurt. What she wants to convey to Rāma is that she is not afraid of the difficulties of forest-life, on the contrary, she would be of great help to him in relieving him of many a hardship he would be subjected to.

7 सर्वास्वागता भर्तुं पादच्छाया विशिष्यते Ct 'विष्णोरभक्ति-कावस्था सर्वावस्थेति गीयते' इत्यभिधानात् । ता गतस्य आ ईपङ्क्तुं । भर्तुरित्यन्तमेक पदम् । अथवा पृथक्पदे । श्रुत्युक्तधर्मानुष्ठानरूपा ता गतापीति योजना । सकलभर्तृधर्मरहितस्यापि पत्यु पादच्छाया पादसेवनमेव हतरधमविश्रया स्त्रिया विशिष्यते अधिक भवति । श्रुतिस्मृत्यो सर्वपरित्यागेन भर्तृसेवाया एव स्त्रीणा नित्यत्वोपधनादिनि भाव ।

8 Sītā goes further and tells Rāma that she had been well-instructed by her parents how she should conduct herself in various situations.

28

4 अश्वपते सुता = कैकेयी

7 यस्या सहस्र ग्रामाणा संप्राप्तमुपजीवनम् Kausalyā was given an allowance of the income from a thousand villages for her maintenance by Dasaratha on his marriage with Kaikeyī as she was अधिविन्ना

29

22-27 This is a short interlude of Trijata Gārgya, a funny ascetic, who desired to have a share in Rāma's distribution of his property, and is probably introduced here by the poet to relieve the mental tension of his readers.

30

10 सत्त्वमाविश्य भापते Dasaratha is speaking to-day as if he is possessed by a ghost. The use of आविश्य does not strictly conform to rules of Pāṇini. The subst. passages 785* or 786* seem to rectify the language by stating अन्येन मन्त्रेनाविष्टेन or यदि हित्यादनाविष्ट सत्त्वेनान्येन

31

25 न मे कार्यं त्वयानृतम् I should not turn you into a liar

35

33-34 These two stanzas raise an interesting ethical question. The situation is that Rāma sat in the chariot and is about to leave for the forest. Dasaratha, to have a last look as it were of Rāma, orders Sumantra, the charioteer, to stop the chariot and not to proceed, while Rāma asks him not to stop, i.e., not to obey Daśaratha's command to stop. Sumantra, naturally, was in a fix whether he should obey the king or Rāma. Secondly, Rāma tells Sumantra that he should tell a lie to Daśaratha that he did not hear his word if, on his return, the king took him to task. The reason for this advice to Sumantra as given by Rāma is that in case Daśaratha remains in that sad plight longer, it would be more painful to him and to all, and hence disobedience and consequent lie is justifiable under the circumstances.

The question to be now considered is whether Rāma who is traditionally known as the champion of absolute truth, should or can advise Sumantra to tell a deliberate lie. The problem of Truth and Falsehood is discussed in a number of places in the MBh, e.g., 12.110.4-20 and the conclusion arrived at seems to be that falsehood is not falsehood under certain circumstances.

24 मोहनार्थं तु पौराणाम् This is another instance of Rāma practising a sort of trick. This type of behaviour is justifiable and is justified by Rāma himself in st. 21 above.

11 परेताचरिता दिशम्, 1c, south

19 उद्गहारो 1c, to fetch water

25 सर्वे, all the three, viz, himself and his blind parents.

33 अशक्तिरपरिक्रम, weak and unable to walk

35 एकपदी Cg एकपदन्यासमात्रयुक्ता मरणि, a track so narrow that one can cover it with one step only

37 न द्विजातिरह etc The young ascetic hit by the arrow of Daśaratha states that he is not a Brahmin. He was the son of the mother belonging to the śūdra caste and of the father belonging to the merchant caste. The old couple, blind on account of age, retired to a forest, built a sort of hermitage, and, with the help of their son, led a quiet life of ascetics

15 विद्युद्योऽम्भसि नाराच I discharged my arrow in the direction of water. Note the unusual use of locative case to indicate direction

21 अपि ह्यद्य कुलं न स्याद्वाधवाणां कुतो भवान् As stated in st 20 above, that if a Kṣatriya consciously attempts to kill an ascetic, the act would remove Indra from his heavenly kingdom. This act of Daśaratha would have ruined the entire race of Raghus, not to speak of a single member like Daśaratha

60

13 सकलन or सकालन means प्रेतनिर्हार according to Ct or सस्कार according to Cg. Elsewhere the term सकलन figures associated with अस्थि when it means collection of bones of the dead. This meaning, of course, is not applicable in the present context

61

1 राजकर्तार, Officers of the King, courtiers

7 अराजक हि नो राष्ट्रम् The condition of a kingless state is described here in sts 8-23. Similar description of a kingless state is found also in the MBh 12-67

18 यत्रमायगृहो मुनि A wandering ascetic does not build a hermitage and halts for the night anywhere at nightfall. In a kingless state, this sort of practice is unsafe and impossible

21 मत्स्या इव नरा नित्यं भक्षयन्ति परस्परम् The MBh expression in 12.67.16 is शूले मत्स्यानिवापक्ष्यन् which is identical with Manu 7.20. This is usually known as मत्स्यन्याय, where the weak are overpowered by the strong. Cf. Kautilya Artha 1.4 and 1.13

We have a reading from Ct which explains अभिकालनेजोभिभवनां ग्रामो, Cg, however, adopts a different reading for <sup>5</sup> and explains अभिकाल तदारव्यग्रामम्। कुलिङ्गामाहचर्वात् बोधिभवनात्तदाराख्यात्ववतात्। नदीमूलत्वोक्ते

64

9 आत्मकामा मदा चण्डी This is Bharata's view about his mother, which is quite pertinent in the present context

20 ऐन्द्रशिखिन्, belonging to the region ऐन्द्रशिखि, a mount which was a famous source of good elephants. It appears that the Kekaya country was rich in elephants, horses, camels, mules and dogs of excellent breed, as these animals are included in the gifts to Bharata

65

1 Bharata's return journey has been fully detailed in the Introduction, p. XXVI. It seems now somewhat difficult to identify the places mentioned. The commentators, particularly those from the South, are unable to present a uniform text, and explain names differently, particularly the expression शिख्यमाकुर्वन्तीम्, which is explained by a majority of them as शिख्यमामन्ताकुर्वन्तीम्, शिख्यकर्षण-न्वभावान्, while Ck says आकुर्वन्तीनामक नद्यन्तरम्, which, from the context, seems to be a more reasonable explanation

10 पार्श्वतीयस्तुरगम्, horses from hills. They are both swift and sturdy, and swim the streams comfortably

14 मत्सरात्रोपितं पथि The journey of Bharata from Rājagṛha to Ayodhyā required seven nightly halts.

66

2 उत्पपात, jumped from her golden seat to welcome her son. She, however, does not reveal to Bharata the news of Dasaratha's death but talks on other matters

14 अज्ञानं प्रजानन्ती To Bharata who was ignorant of his father's death which Kaikeyī knew so well

7 मातृरूपे ममाग्निरेव You are my enemy in the form of a mother

13 कौसल्यायात्मसम्भवम् = कौसल्याया आत्मसम्भवम्, a case of double samdhā after elision of visarga. All southern commentators explain this feature in a similar way. There are hundreds of such instances in the language of the Epics. G3, among our MSS, changes the above reading to कौसल्यायास्तन्मद्भवम् to bring it in line with Pāṇini's rules

3 कोविदारध्वज The flag or banner of Bharata had an emblem of Kovidāra tree The commentators do not seem to be kindly to Bharata, and they seem to put into the mouth of Guha that this tree is an emblem of wickedness In fact, Guha thought that Bharata had come there to punish the fishermen or that he was pursuing Rāma to kill him So he asked his men to be ready to fight with Bharata and his army, if necessary

35-36 Bharata was provided with a royal seat, but he did not use it, on the contrary, he offered his homage to the seat as if Rāma was occupying it, and himself occupied the seat meant for a minister or an associate. Note the Dative case रामाय which is to be construed with अमिप्रणम्य

28 Bharadvāja advises Bharata not to accuse Kaikeyī as her behaviour in putting Rāma into exile would end well, probably suggesting the death of Rāvana

33 यानप्रवेक्षे = यानोत्तमे

88

This Sarga describes the beauties of Citrakūṭa. Rāma points them out to Sītā and concludes that he would spend happily the entire period of exile in her and Lakṣmana's company, observing duties of a pious life as led by good men

89

15 Rāma asks Sītā to regard the wild animals as citizens, the mount Citrakūṭa as the city of Ayodhyā, and the river Mandākinī as the Sarayū, so that she should not feel that she is staying in the forest

19 App I (No 26).—After this stanza, the MSS of NR including M<sub>4</sub> insert a long passage of 122 lines, impropriety of which has been fully discussed in the Introduction. It has been pointed out there that the passage consists of two parts, part one of 66 lines and part two of the remaining lines. Both these parts seem to be very old, the first going back to the age of Bhavabhūti (8th century A D) and the second to the age of Kālidāsa (5th century). Bhavabhūti actually quotes a stanza or two from part one of this passage, and Kālidāsa in his poem Raghuvamśa (12.21-23) refers to the Kāka episode. Though there is no trace of the Kāka episode in Ayodhyā in T G M<sub>1-3</sub>, which I consider to be the purest SR, the story is referred to in the Vulgate, 5.67, in the Lahore edition in 5.66 and in Gorresio's edition in 5.68, and is used as an abhijñāna by Sītā in her message to Rāma. Thus, all the printed editions agree in retaining the incident in the Sundarākāṇḍa. What would be the position of this episode in our critical text is yet to be seen. I, however, do not see any reason to change my views as expressed in the Introduction. The reason why I eschewed it from the Ayodhyākāṇḍa is that it is not found in SR in the Ayodhyākāṇḍa. If our MSS have this incident in the Sundarākāṇḍa, my explanation is that NR referred to it in the Ayodhyākāṇḍa in anticipation. The exclusion of this passage is justified from the point of view of textual criticism

90

14, 16 The Kovidārādhvaja was a special and exclusive banner of Bharata, having the emblem of an exuberant (विटपिन्) Kovidāra tree. If Rāma and Lakṣmana fight with Bharata's army and capture the banner, it would be regarded as the defeat of Bharata

18 अरिर्भरत Lakṣmana calls Bharata to be an enemy and regards him as worthy of being killed

21 कलुषेणाद्य महता मेदिनी परिमुच्यताम्, Let the earth be cleared of a great evil, viz, Kaikeyī and her son Bharata

91

5 अहं ह्यप्रियमुक्तं स्या भर्तृस्वाप्रिये कृते Rāma is trying to pacify Lakṣmana, pointing out to him to mention a single occasion on which Bharata ever displeased him, and concluding he says that if Lakṣmana speaks a single unpleasant word to Bharata, Rāma would regard it as an offence against himself. After this argument, Lakṣmana was put to shame and looked small (प्रविवेक्षेव स्वानि गात्राणि लज्जया)

3 दुष्प्रतीकम् Cg वेवण्यादिना दुर्विषेयावयवम्, Ct दुष्प्रतीकमिति भरतविशेषण वनविशेषण वा । आप्ते कार्श्यववण्यादिना दुर्विषेयाकारम्, वनमपि सीयणतया ।

2134* SR first puts into the mouth of Rāma a question suspecting Daśaratha's death, and, without waiting for Bharata's reply to that question, goes on firing question after question how he is ruling his newly acquired state, whether he observes rules laid down for the guidance of a good king. To me, the entire set of stanzas beginning with कश्चित् except the first, is out of place, and introduced to show that Vālmiki knew well the science of polity. Compare, in this context, Mbh 2 5 7-99, where the questions put to newly enthroned Yudhishthira by Nārada who visited him have a sense of propriety in the context. These questions there cover some 93 stanzas in the constituted text and about 100 or more in the Vulgate. Our Critical Text contains just 56 stanzas against 73 in the Vulgate and a few less in Gorresio. Professor Edgerton has given a note in his Addenda et corrigenda, to Sabhāparvan pp 489-491. He says there that about 37 stanzas of Rāmāyana have their parallels in the MBh 2 5. I think there is clearly an imitation here of the MBh, where the questions are justified on more than one ground, while there is a good deal of absurdity in them in the Rāmāyana on emotional ground. The question put in stanza 3 is just the question to be put to Bharata, and had Rāma waited for a few moments before he put the other questions, the situation would have become clear to Rāma that Bharata had not accepted the Kingship. But without waiting for a reply to the first question, Rāma fires on his questions making Bharata a silent and bewildered listener. We may have been justified in ignoring them altogether, but our MSS. authorities are uniform in keeping at least 56 of the stanzas.

This sarga and the following 96th sarga are read in a number of MSS. after sarga 97 of the Critical Text. That order of the text is not correct and does not correctly represent the chronology of events as has been pointed out by Govindarāja. Mahāśvaratīrtha seems to be the champion of that order of sargas and Govindarāja has criticised his views. A part of Cg is given in the Critical Apparatus. I am citing here the remaining part:

2 शाश्वतोऽयं सदा धर्मः स्थितोऽस्मात् नरर्षभ Bharata points out to Rāma that it is an eternal law with the race of Ikṣvāku that so long as the eldest son is living, he should succeed his father and no younger son should be made a king. Compare in this context, what Vasistha says in 2 102 30

इक्ष्वाकूणां हि सर्वेषां राजा भवति पूर्वज ।

पूर्वजे नावर पुत्रो ज्येष्ठो राज्येऽभिषिच्यते ॥

26 ततः = हे तात Some MSS. and even printed editions put figure 3 after ततः to indicate that the second vowel of the word is a pluta. The word ततः is misunderstood and hence a wide variety of readings has come in

31 यदन्न पुरुषो भवति तदन्नास्तस्य देवता, gives Rāma's explanation why he offers नीवारपिण्याक as a पिण्ड to his father

97

21 एव कृत्वा महाराजो विभाग लोकसनिधौ Rāma points out to Bharata, "our father divided patrimony in the manner that you should rule in Ayodhyā and I should live in the forest " This division of patrimony, once made, cannot be undone, following the well-known legal maxim सङ्कटशो निपतति (Manu 9 47)

98

4 तद्दामि तवेवाह Bharata says to Rāma that the kingdom was no doubt given to him by their father, but now he gives it to Rāma which he should accept

99

3-4 Rāma points out to Bharata that Dasaratha made a promise to Kaikeyi's father at the time of marriage that kingdom to her son would be the dowry Dasaratha also gave to Kaikeyi two boons, Kingdom to Bharata and exile to Rāma He further says to Bharata that they both should honour the pledges of their parents

100

1 धमपितम्, far away from the accepted law Jābāli here takes the stand of an athiest or Laukāyatika and argues that Rāma should go to Ayodhyā and rule there Jābāli is made here the champion of the Lokāyata school, and advocates the philosophy of that school, the object being to persuade Rāma to go back to Ayodhyā

16 2241* Note that the contents of this * passage have no uniform location in the MSS Note particularly lines 13-16 which make an unjustifiable reference to Buddha calling him a thief The absurdity of this passage is quite plain on the surface, but, it must be admitted, it is at least as old as Udāri (earlier than 1250 A D ) The composer of this stanza confounds Buddha and Cārvāka In the first place, Buddha is not a Laukāyatika or Nāstika, and there are no points of agreement between their views It must, at the same time, be noted that the tenets of the Lokā-

yata school are as old as humanity itself, but Buddhism has a history and came into existence in the 6th century B C To make any reference to Buddha and his philosophy is an anachronism because Jābāli, Rāma's senior, uses his name, further, Vālmiki also is chronologically older than Buddha To call Buddha a thief indicates only a hatred on the part of the composer in a composition characterised by literary chastity The spurious character of this passage requires no further comments It is clearly smuggled into Vālmiki's text by one who disliked and misunderstood Buddha's teachings The NE version has no trace of this passage

The genealogy of Ikṣvāku Kings which appears here may be compared with one which appears in the Bālakānda, 1 69 17-30 and also with that in 1 1274* If we examine the Rāmāyana genealogy of the solar race, we find some discrepancies The chronology as given in the Constituted Text of the Bālakānda and that given in the Ayodhyākānda do not show complete agreement Here I may point out particularly the name of Yayāti which figures in Bāla but not in Ayodhyā In fact, this name of Yayāti among kings of the solar race looks strange as has been pointed out by Dr A D Pusalkar in his article "Genealogy of the Solar Dynasty in the Purānas and the Rāmāyana A study," appearing in Purāna, IV pp 23-33

103

15 Bharata wanted to go on hunger-strike or Prāyopaveśana, and asked Sumantra to spread the darbha grass on the ground, and as Sumantra was hesitating, himself started to spread it on the ground Rāma then tells him that as a Kṣatriya he cannot go on hunger-strike Bharata then appeals to the public to prevail upon Rāma to go back to Ayodhyā, but they declined to do so, as in their opinion Rāma's stand to obey his father was right

29 उपधिर्न मया कार्यो वनवामे जुगुप्सित, I cannot bypass the father's word that I should stay in the forest under any pretext (उपधि) because I detest such a thing He, however, adds that the period of exile is fixed at fourteen years, and agrees that he would later on return to Ayodhyā and rule along with Bharata

104

21-22 Bhārata now asks Rāma to do him a favour to put his feet on the sandals bedecked with gold, and give them to him Rāma does this, and thereupon Bharata tells the people that these sandals of Rāma would henceforth look to the welfare of the world After receiving these sandals from Rāma, Bharata places them on the head of an elephant, and asks his party to return to Ayodhyā

105

12 This stanza states that Vasistha suggested to Rāma to give his sandals to Bharata, while in 2 104 20 it is Bharata who made that proposal to Rāma Perhaps Vasistha might have suggested that course to Bharata

107

In NR, the Ayodhyākānda ends with this sarga D<sub>1</sub>, in fact, has an additional passage given in App I (No 31) and covering two sargas narrating the abhiseka of the sandals followed by a phalaśruti Note that this additional passage is exclusive to this MS, and is not traced to any other MS so far discovered

108

This sarga and the three following are found as part of the Aranyakānda in NR I have explained in my Introduction, p XX the reasons for taking these over here in Ayodhyā

25 The phrase राम ससाध्य तृपिगणमनुगमनादेशात्तस्मात् is very clumsy in construction and means that Rāma agreed that the sages wanted to leave Citrakūta and go elsewhere for a right reason, viz, the region was being infested by demons सम्यक्प्रीतैस्तेरनुमत is another difficult and clumsy phrase NR uses the right word समादिष्ट while अनुमत is awkward

26 This stanza also is somewhat uncouth The meaning is that after the departure of ascetics, Rāma did not leave his hut even for a moment, for, these ascetics who were busy in observing the saintly vows, were always close associates of Rāma.

109

9-12 Anasūyā, the wife of Atri, was a lady who had acquired miraculous powers by penance. When for ten years the world suffered from the effects of a severe famine, she produced fruits and roots, and made the river Gangā to flow, she also prolonged a night for ten days for the benefit of gods

110

15 किं ते कर्वाणि, what shall I do for you? To this question, Sītā replies by saying that all is done by her grace, and nothing remains to be done (कृतमित्यब्रवीत्)

18 असङ्घट्ट नित्यमेव भविष्यति The cosmetic preparations and clothes which Anasūyā gave to Sītā had the property of their being always fresh and that they would never be worn out (असङ्घट्ट and नित्यम्)

26-50 These stanzas contain a narration of Sītā's svayamvara. The only point to be noted is that the bow, according to SR, belonged to Varuna, while according to some MSS of the NE version, it belonged to Śamkara (cf 2392*)

111

17 अभिषिच्य is to be construed with हुनाजिक्कन्; the construction is somewhat irregular

19 The ascetics pointed out to Rāma two paths, one leading to the safer portion of the forest by which they used to go to bring fruits, while the other led to a difficult and uncomfortable part of Dandakāranya
